Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 25 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Becoming dry with some sunshine.

Today:
Cloud and outbreaks of rain slowly clearing from southeast England. Elsewhere, dry with sunny spells for most parts, though some blustery showers affecting the northwest at times.

Tonight:
Most places dry with skies clearing to allow a widespread frost and isolated fog patches. Cloudier and breezier conditions across northern Scotland with a little light rain.

Friday:
A few early mist and fog patches in the west steadily clearing. A cloudy morning with some rain across Northern Isles. Otherwise, fine for most places with plenty of sunshine.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Generally settled with light winds. Variable amounts of cloud, but some sunny/clear periods. Patchy overnight frost and mist, but overall mild.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.